

*2005 - 2006 White Cross
Arrives in Democratic Republic of Congo
February 2008*

The 2007 White Cross container has finally arrived in Kinshasa! It was off loaded in the Congo Protestant Relief Agency (CPRA) warehouse and sorted by institution.

White Cross being transported to Boko Hospital.

White Cross being transported to Kipata Katika Hospital

White Cross being transported to Vanga Hospital

Two of CBCO's medical institutions who receive White Cross supplies are right here in Kinshasa. This week, I got the privilege of delivering White Cross supplies both to the Health Center in Kintambo (attached pictures - me at the steering wheel) and to the Ophthalmology Clinic which is located right on the CBCO headquarters compound. The 250 pound boxes of bandages take lots of muscle to move! The staff at both institutions asked me to convey their deep appreciation for the ministry of White Cross, which is an invaluable help to the patients they serve.

The supplies to the hospitals in the Bas Congo province were also delivered this week (Sona Bata, Nselo, Kimpesi, and Nsona Mpangu). The medical director of Nselo called to inform me of the safe arrival of the supplies. He also asked me to pass along the thanks of the staff at the Nselo hospital on behalf of their patients .

We thank God for the safe arrival of the container, with everything is good condition. As you share this good news with those who have supported White Cross. Our heart felt thanks for their faithfulness to this ministry. These supplies will bring help and hope to many in DRC, and we covet your continued prayers for our medical ministry here.

Blessings,

Katherine Niles (Missionary to Congo)